DEDICATE HOSPITAL IN RAIN OR SHINE

University Officials in Ceremonies for Elliot Memorial and Institute of Anatomy.

Rain caused no change in the plans of the University medical faculty for the dedication of Elliot Memorial Hospital, and the ceremony was scheduled to take place regardless of weather conditions. The committee on arrangements planned to have the ceremony in front of the library building and chapel on the old campus. In case of rain the spectators would simply go inside the chapel.

Two ceremonies were to be combined. President George Edgar Vincent of the University of Minnesota was to lay the cornerstone of the new institute of anatomy at Washington Avenue southeast and church street, and the guests went from the old campus to the hospital for a formal inspection.

Members of the University faculty, legislators, state officers and hundreds of invited guests gathered at the campus before 2 p.m. for the ceremony. Many had received formal invitations, while the public had been allowed to attend.

Dean Webbre Presides.

Dean E. F. Webbre of the college of medicine had been chosen to preside at the ceremony, and President Vincent was to be the principal speaker. After a brief introduction by Dr. Webbre, Rev. J. M. Cleary pastore of the Church of the Incarnation, was to give the invocation and Dr. J. E. Moore, chairman of the faculty committee on hospitals, was to tell the story of the Elliot Hospital Memorial Hospital and make a sketch of the life of Dr. A. F. Elliot, for whom the hospital was named and whose heirs gave the fund that made the presentation of the university.

President Vincent was to follow with the dedicatory address, in which he was to explain how the public was to give the keys of the hospital to the superintendents. Dr. J. E. Moore, superintendent of the University hospitals, was to make the formal invitations, while the public had been allowed to attend.

Elliott Hospital Memorial Hospital.

The Elliott Hospital Memorial Hospital, the central and main building of the university hospital group, was dedicated today at 2 p.m. with a public ceremony on the university campus, in front of the library building. The dedication ceremony was followed by an inspection of the hospital.

The hospital was erected at a cost of $355,000. The memorial fund consisted of $15,000, given by Mrs. Mary H. Elliott, widow of Dr. A. F. Elliott, and his son-in-law, Walter T. Trask, of Los Angeles, Cal. The legislature added $40,000 to the gift.

Dr. Elliott was a pioneer physician of Minneapolis, but moved to California. He died at Los Angeles in 1902, leaving a large estate. His Minneapolis real estate holdings had become valuable. He was always interested in the University of Minnesota, and in 1903 Mrs. Elliott proposed to give the memorial hospital. It was accepted by the regents and was the first building to be erected on the new campus.

The dedication program follows:

Introductory remarks by the dean, Dr. F. F. Webbre, president.

Invocation, Rev. Father James Cleary.

Presentation of the keys, Dr. J. E. Moore, chairman of the committee on hospitals.

Address, "Unveiling the Memorial Tablets and Delivering the Keys of the Hospital to the Governor and Superintendent." President George Edgar Vincent.

The "History of the Hospital Movement," Dr. J. E. Moore, chairman of the committee on hospitals.

Address, "The Status of the Present Hospital and Outpatient Service," Dr. L. B. Baldwin, superintendent of the University hospitals.

"Endowment of the Elliott Memorial Hospital," Frank M. Elliott.

Site Cost $42,000.

The site for the hospital, which is on the bluff of the river at Easen and Church streets, was purchased for the university by citizens of Minneapolis at a cost of $42,000. Elliott L. Carpenter, one of the subscribers to the fund, was to represent the donors of the site and talk of the work of the citizens' committee in getting the land.

The relations to the university hospitals and the medical alumni was the subject assigned to Dr. Edward L. Tooby of Dahlen.

Dr. Frank H. Alexander of Barnesville and Dr. J. B. Degan of Lyndale, Minneapolis.

"The University Hospitals as an Economic Asset of the State," was the subject of Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester.

The closing address was to be by Dr. Vincent Dedicates University Hospital.

MINNEAPOLIS DAY DRAWS GOOD CROWD

Unfavorable Weather Holds Down Early Attendance, But More Come Later

At TENDANCE FIGURES

| Monday, 1909 | 86072 |
| Monday, 1910 | 75,447 |
| Monday, 1911 | 14,609 |
| Tuesday, noon, 1910 | 31,422 |
| Tuesday, noon, 1911 | 22,500 |

Minnesota day brought a rush of visitors to the state fair today about noon, when crowds began pouring into the gates. Prospects were not encouraging early in the day, but an improvement in the weather indications started a big increase in attendance. Indications were for a much better record than yesterday, when the paid admissions were 14,609.

Rural Minnesota has furnished practically all the early attendance at the fair today. Whole families come together and spend the day in the park. The state fair has been opened until the police hustle them away at night. They visit everything systematically, view everything intelligently and after having seen the entire show, have added much to the store of information as well as entertainment of the visitors that is most in evidence today. Ordinarily, on a bright sunny day they are partially obscured by the throngs from the cities.

Old West Pioneer: There.

E. T. Pettijohn, a pioneer of 1860, of St. Paul, was welcomed wherever he went. Mr. Pettijohn has lived in Minnesota since 1860, seventeen years in all, and longer than any other man not born in the state. Mr. Pettijohn has seen every state fair held in the twin cities, and fifty years ago he was active in arranging the first one.

Arthur Johnson of the Washburn home, superintendent of a company of twenty one orphaned boys, has a unique addition to his medical college. According to Dr. Richard Olding, he will have the only system of University Hospital buildings in the United States having an on the job hospital. The board of regents has reserved a block of buildings on the institution, to be used as a site for other buildings of this group.

Patients from other buildings on the campus, which have been used as hospitals, will be removed immediately into the new building. Only charitable cases will be admitted into the new hospital, and not as a first step, but to the capacity at present for laboratory work, as the laboratory is crowded in until other buildings are finished.

Farmers Interested.

"About double the farmers of farmers who applied last year are singing our cards asking that the agricultural college bulletins be sent them," said George F. Howard of the extension division today in the booth in front of the west entrance of the Agricultural building. "The efforts to popularize and make practical the work of the agricultural school is inspiring increasing interest among farmers, and more and more of them want the valuable suggestions coming as the result of our experimental work. The bulletins are out free, and we already have a mailing list of 35,555, which we want to increase to 100,000."